Meeting Guidelines

- Honoring time: In order to keep the meeting on track, follow the scheduled agenda.
- Cell phones: Turn off or switch cell phone to silent. Your full attention is needed for the meeting.
- Conversational courtesy: The person speaking "has the floor." Don't interrupt. Avoid sideline discussions.
- Speaker focus: Address the entire group and avoid turning your back on participants.
- Discussion: Don't dominate the discussion. Give everyone a chance to participate.

- Decorum: It is inappropriate to ridicule, disparage, threaten or otherwise demean another participant. Comments should pertain to the topic under consideration, not motivations, character or personalities. No profanity.
- Hand gestures: Refrain from aggressive or dismissive hand gestures.
- Viewpoints: The meeting provides an opportunity to share ideas, and gain an understanding of other viewpoints. All points of view have value.
- Editorials: Although it is tempting to analyze motives or offer editorial comments, focus on presenting your own ideas and thoughts.
- Humor: Humor is welcome, but not at the expense of others.
- Maintaining order: The presiding official is responsible for applying ground rules to all meeting participants, and all attendees are responsible for abiding by the ground rules and the presiding official's guidance.
